Won't Have to Regin His Sentence Until Jan. 7.

Ex-Police Capt. John T. Stephenson will not begin to serve his three years and nine months' sentence until Jan. 7. About noon to-day ex-Corporation Counsel Jenks, of Bruoklyn, and Lawyer John Vincent, of New York, obtained an order directing District-Attorney Fellows to show cause on Jan. 7 in Brooklyn why Stephenson's sentence should not be stayed pending appeal.

The same application was made to Justice Gaynor yesterday, but he declined to grant it until specific reasons for asking the order had been incorporated in the application. This work was completed this morning and Justice Gaynor tien signed the order.

The application is based on the grounds of insufficiency of the indictment; on the exceptions taken during the trial; on exceptions taken during the trial; on exceptions to Judge Ingraham's charge to the jury and to the charge itself. not begin to serve his three years

Comstock Emphatically Objected.

Anthony Comstock heard of the return of the goods, and on Aug. 12, 1889, he dictated a letter and sent it to District-Attorney Fellows, in which he said he was informed that the goods had been delivered over to the defendant.

"I beg to call your attention," he wrote, "to the fact that there are four indictments pending against this man Gray; that these matters were matters of evidence; that, aside from that, they can be used in printing tickets for the same bogus lotteries and the implements for numbering can be used for fumbering them. The matter for your consideration is that these very stones and implements can now be sent to any other place, and the criminal who stands indicted for felony has received back in his hands the means for committing a like offense. I ask you that steps may be taken to see that these, the means for committing a felony, may be recovered and put back in the hands of the property clerk or else destroyed."

There is nothing in the papers to show that ex-Assistant District-Attorney Henry Hartman had anything to do with the case.

Recorder Smyth and District-Attorney Fellows, it is shown, were the only ones who had anything to do with the quashing of the indictments. Col. Fellows said this morning that he did not remember the case without looking at the papers, but that he certainly had good reasons and legal reasons for any action which he had taken in it.

He also said that he would at any time accept the word of Comstock in good faith, when the latter asked him to dismiss an indictment, and gave a reason

This was adopted, although Commissioner Beil objected on the ground that Mr. Parsons was not known to have the necessary qualifications. Mr. Parsons explained that before he was Superintendent he had been in partnership with Calvert Vaux, a landscape artist.

Mr. Clausen also produced a report made by the Commissioners of Accounts to Mayor Grant, in April, 1822, in which Mr. Vaux was jumped on and his dismissal demanded. At that time Mr.
Vaux said he would resign if he did not have the assistance of Mr. Parsons, especially in deciding as to the trees and other vegetation to be arranged for particular localities.

Straightway he hastened to Col.

He told of all the bad actions the man had performed, then pointed out that the appointment, if made, would soriously reflect on the incoming administration.

BROMO Mayor-elect Strong did not give out his list of appointments this morning. In the crowd in the corridors of the City Hall in anticipation of such an event, were a number prominent in Good Government Club work and other political asso-ciations Mr. Job E. outrage that a citizen could be attacked by irresponsible witnesses and then not have an opportunity to defend himself. His remarks grew very warm, and turning towards Mr. Goff, who was packing up his papers at a table across the room, Mr. Comstock shouted: "And it is that man who does not want to give me a chance to go on the stand.
